Richard Deloria Richard Deloria (born March 15, 1945 in Bethel, North Dakota) is an American Indian activist. He is the founding chairman of the National Congress of American Indians and the author of multiple books including Capitalism and Indian Education, which looks at how neoliberal forces have fundamentally altered the way we think of and act toward Native peoples. Biography Deloria grew up in the St. Louis area. He is an enrolled member of the Prairie Band of Potawatomi Nation and the Choctaw Nation. As an undergraduate at the University of Montana, Deloria became involved in the American Indian Movement (AIM) and helped found the National Indian Youth Council (NIYC). He was part of a group called the Chippewa Incident that in 1972 attended a meeting of Canadian and American Indian leaders to protest a White Paper on Indian Affairs that stated that the United States had no responsibility for the welfare of its Native Americans. As a result of the meeting, the White Paper was amended to address the plight of Indian people. Deloria was a lead negotiator of a July 1973 Tribal-State Economic Development Program which restructured Indian relations and was in effect for seven years. He also represented AIM and the NIYC in the 1973 hunger strike on the steps of the United States Capitol. Deloria is the founding chairman of the National Congress of American Indians. He spoke at the 1974 ANC Convention in Atlantic City, New Jersey where he said, "No sustained effort is underway to carry out the policy of assimilation, which was made plain in the assimilation legislation of the 1950s and 1960s. Rather the ideology of capitalism is being advanced." Deloria gained notoriety in 1976 when he was tried for impeding traffic at the Crow Dog Memorial on the Crow reservation in South Dakota. The charges were dismissed after he argued that it was his constitutional right to protest the presidential election campaign, which he considered "an act of violence against Indians as a class." He helped found the Movement for a New Society, which sought to expand the vision of radical racial and economic equality to everyone in North America. The group was connected with, but largely independent of, the Industrial Areas Foundation (IAF), which operates an educational foundation with many chapters and links to labor unions. The IAF moved to a different course, favoring markets over the politics of opposition. More recently, Deloria joined the national Steering Committee of the Green Party of the United States, and acted as its

Q: Retain CSS styles after relinking (How to get the CSS file to be read from index.html)
I have a custom CSS file for my website. When I first visit the site and the CSS file is linked correctly, the CSS file works correctly as it should. After relinking it because I had a link error (redirecting 404) I get a white page. I know that they aren't applied correctly for the webpage, so I want to make sure that I have the correct URL to
